More than half a century history of a training school for Anma, Massage and Shiatsu practitioners, one and only in chu-shikoku area.

Department of Acupuncture and Moxibustion is quite a unique institution in Japan because the Department has Finger -Pressure Shiatsu training division granted by the government.

Very few schools have been granted such a government permit and the Department is one of the few. Incoming students spend three years to prepare for a board examination. The program is designed to train the students to become a professional therapist by offering a number of clinical training hours. We hope to train them to become a key person in integrative medical field in a coming future.

A meticulous guidance tailored to the needs of each student before entry and after graduation

We offer school orientation on campus before their entry to our school in April so that we would be able to motivate them more. Our clinical training program is an individual oriented one.

We also offer a workshop to give them a training to acquire a habit of learning after graduation. This demonstrates that our department gives a continuous support to the students before their entry to our school and after graduation.

Educational Objectives

The essence of medicine is said to be a skin touch. We hope to educate our students enabling them to perform the heartfelt medical treatment born through a human contact to future patients.

The department has been carrying out education for the heartfelt medical treatment by placing an emphasis on basics, since the establishment in 1956.

The department also has been making an effort to educate our students who can make a contribution to society through the medical treatment.
